

Using Scholarship to Define Your Problem: The Role of the Literature Review

Presented by

Wallace Southerland III, Ph.D.
Associate Director
University of Maryland McNair Scholars Program

- ❑ Select the most appropriate literature strands for your study
- ❑ Identify where to find the most appropriate literature for your study
- ❑ Develop strategies for mining the literature for easy retrieval later
- ❑ The “breaking point”: Knowing when “enough is enough”
- Developing a plan to conduct the literature review

- Strategies for integrating the different literature strands
- Stating implications for your study - which is not the same as a summary of the literature
- Constructing your analytic framework
- Relationship to Conclusions and Recommendations